EtonHouse International Pre-School Tokyo

INTRODUCTION

Our goal at EtonHouse International Pre-School Tokyo is to provide a thoughtfully considered and aesthetically beautiful learning environment, designed to stimulate the learning and development of young children 18 months to six years of age.

Our curriculum is inspired by our understandings of the work undertaken by colleagues working in the world re-known preschools and infant toddler centres in Reggio Emilia, in Northern Italy. The Inquire o Think o Learn curriculum focuses on inquiry based learning where children's ideas, interests and theories inform the design of curriculum experiences.

Young children at EtonHouse are respected as competent thinkers and communicators who are offered many opportunities to engage with a wide range of materials and resources to extend and challenge their thinking. Our curriculum invites children to explore, discover, hypothesise, predict, problem solve, construct, and document their deepening understandings of the world in which we live. Our approach acknowledges the significance of socio-cultural theory in that children learn via quality interactions and relationships with people, places and things.

We encourage young children to explore their environment and express themselves using multiple languages which may include speaking, singing, movement, drawing, painting, writing, building and designing, collage, dramatic play, and music. Topics of study for project work may be captured from the children's current competencies, skills, ideas and theories, through family and community events as well as the best known interests of children (enduring childhood themes e.g., relationships, roles and responsibilities, identity).

Housed in a stand-alone building with 5 floors, EtonHouse International Pre-School Tokyo offers a unique programme for children aged 18 months to 6 years within an international pre-school environment. The language of instruction At EtonHouse International Pre-School Tokyo is English. However, we also offer a Mandarin immersion programme where there is a Mandarin teacher in the classroom. Children therefore learn the language in a more contextual and relevant environment.

In Reggio Emilia, they refer to the learning environment as the 'third teacher'. At EtonHouse International Pre-School Tokyo, our teachers pay great attention in the look and 'feel' of the classrooms (ambience) carefully organizing spaces for small and large group work. We believe that children have a right to a respectful environment. Through careful choice of colour, natural materials and the use of natural light, we hope not only to build relationships between the indoor and outdoor learning spaces, but to ensure our classrooms are aesthetic as well as functional spaces.

The resourceful Hinokicho Park that is right next to our school provides an environment that our children can build deep relationships with the natural world.

INQUIRE ■ THINK ■ LEARN

At EtonHouse International Pre-School Tokyo, we believe inquiry is a process which involves...

Inquire

Think

Learn

- Accessing the children's interests and prior knowledge. Questions arise out of the child's experience which initiates a process of exploring, investigating and discussing ideas with others to build new theories and new meanings.
- Taking action around curiosity, building layers of knowledge and understanding regarding topics that are of interest to individuals and groups. What children already know, and what they want to find out becomes the starting point for curriculum design.
- Learning by experience – exploring possibilities and testing ideas, trial and error exploration either individually or in small groups. Inquiry is about hands on, experiential learning. Learning experiences must be engaging and meaningful to young children.
- Collaboration and dialogue with others, recording and communicating one's thoughts, ideas and feelings to others through a wide range of languages including drawing, painting, sculpting, constructing.
- Supporting children to re-visit and reflect on their own learning - articulating the experience to oneself.
- Creating an environment where children are supported to research and collaborate with their peers, teachers, families, and the wider community; where materials are open ended, diverse, real life and challenging.
